CubelQ announces the availability of A98-D, an A98 RKL version for ATM multivendor platforms

[EN] Athens, GR, May 21st, 2013 - CubelQ Limited, an IT company provider of software solutions and systems for financial, banking and corporate institutions, announces the availability of A98-D, an A98 RKL version for ATM multivendor platforms.

The use of multivendor middleware platforms in ATMs is increasing its footage within ATM population. Non-native ATM software increases the complexity in automating ATM key management. Every ATM manufacturer has its own unique remote key protocol. The different ATM remote key protocols fall either into a Certificate Base Protocol (CBP) or a Signature Based Protocol (SBP) category. However, without exception, no two ATM manufacturer's protocols are alike. In other words, one ATM manufacturers CBP protocol is not the same as another ATM manufacturer's CBP protocol and CBP protocols are fundamentally different from SBP protocols.

Our new A98-D RKL version covers the need of RKL in ATM multivendor platforms. A98-D is provided with the standard support of native ATM RKL protocols including native RKL protocols for Diebold, NCR, Wincor Nixdorf, Triton and Nautilus Hyosung ATMs. Additionally, A98-D provides support for RKL multivendor platforms such as:

- NCR's APTRA® running on Diebold and Nautilus Hyosung ATMs
- Wincor Nixdorf's ProCash® running on Diebold and NCR ATMs
